Over the years there have been many changes in my life. There have been changes in the sports I like, my role model, and my thoughts about different subjects. Probably the biggest change in my life has been what I've thought about school.

When I was starting 1st grade, I had no life or something like that. I loved school so much that I would make up problems and do them for fun. I would even ask the teacher for extra credit even though I already had an A in the class. As you can see I loved school work. I hated weekends because they would effect my learning time. Over the weekends I'm sure I did some type of problems, afraid I might forget over a 2 day break. I went to school to go and try to make new friends. At the time I hated rock and roll and my role model was the ninja turtles. As you can tell my favorite subject was math. Most kids at that age thought girls had the cooties and I was one of them. Just to prove how obsessed with school I was I got straight A's all through Elementary school. Not even one B.

Now about six years later almost everything about me has changed. Now my role model is the rock and roll group System of a Down. Now I have been slacking on all my school assignments. I think that I've only got about 3 A's this semester. Now

My worst subject is either Math or science. My favorite subject is lunch because we get a break from all that learning. Now I love the weekends they are the best part of the week. Now I like girls and I dont know how I didnt like them.

These are just some of the changes that have taken place in my life. I could go on and on about what I thought then and what I think now.
